CHRISTMAS CAROL.

Th' Eternal Son of God is of a Virgin born, While angels watch his nod, and heed the babe forlorn;
Called by the angel's voice, the shepherds haste to greet
Their Savior, and rejoice to kiss the Infant's feet.
Conducted by a star, wise kings their treasures bring,
As homage from afar, to their sweet infant king.
How lovely! O, how fair they find that babe divine!
Oh! let us too go there, nor at his lot repine.
The Lord of all, th' immense becomes a little child;
His home is heaven, yet thence he comes to be exiled, Poor infant! Though enriched with all that's rich in heav'n,
He's poor because He wished that all to us be giv'n.
See now the Lord of lords, whom heav'n and earth obey,
Obeys His creature's words, to teach submission's way.
Meek child! the proud, the great, are little in His eyes.
While in His humble state so mild on straw He lies.
O, ravishing delight of saints in heav'n and earth:
Sad and forlorn by night, thou weepest at thy birth.
O Word of God! Thy word made all things out of naught:
Cannot thy speech be heard, till by thy creatures taught?
Thy silence is thy speech; and, oh! how eloquent, Proud boasting man to teach in silence to repent!
By silence dost thou preach—by weakness strengthen me—
By poverty enrich—by bondage set me free.
Poor sinner, dost thou ask why Christ is lowly born?
Then be thy grateful task to meditate and learn Sinner, thy Savior's pain is penance for thy sin;
His losses are thy gain, borne but to make thee win.
His sorrows bring thee joy; to make thee rich, He's poor;
His griefs thy griefs destroy, till grief is felt no more.
While weeping o'er thy ills, he seeks to dry thy tears.
While care his bosom thrills, He seeks to soothe thy cares.
While humbled for thy pride, and weak to give thee strength,
He journeys by thy side to lead thee home at length.
Dear Mother of our Lord!
Teach us to love thy Son,
And keep His holy word, Until our race is run.

Lead us not into Temptation.

AN AFFECTING COURT INCIDENT.

Law, though framed for the protection of society, often admits of a construction adverse to the designs of its legislators; and in its application, frequently defeats the object which it was intended to sus-tain. We have, however, numerous instances wherein honest juries have given their verdicts conformable to the promptings of justice; and, happily, when such decisions have not been too widely different from the expressed rule, they have escaped from the appeal.

We take pleasure in relating an incident which greatly enlisted our sympathies, held us spell-bound by its interest, and finally made our hearts leap with joy at its happy termination.

In the spring of 184— we chanced to be spending a few days in a beautiful inland town, in Pennsylvania. It was court week, and to relieve us somewhat from the monotonous incidents of village life, we stepped into the room where the court had convened.

Among the prisoners in the box, we saw a lad but ten years of age, whose sad and pensive countenance, his young and innocent appearance, caused him to look sadly out of place among the hardened criminals by whom he was surrounded.

Close by the box, and manifesting the greatest interest in the proceedings, sat a tearful woman, whose anxious glance from the judge to the boy, left us no room to doubt that it was his mother. We turned with sadness from the scene to enquire of the offence of the prisoner, and learned he was accused of stealing money.

The case was soon commenced, and by the interest manifested by that large crowd, we found that our heart was not the only one in which sympathy for the lad existed. How we pitied him! The bright smile had vanished from his face, and now it more expressed the cares of the aged. His young sister—a bright-eyed girl—had gained admission to his side, and cheered him with whisperings of hope. But that sweet voice, which before caused his heart to bound with happiness, added only to the grief his shame had brought upon him.

The progress of the case acquainted us with the circumstances of the loss, the extent of which was a dime—no more!

The lad's employer, a wealthy, miserly, unprincipled manufacturer, had made use of it, for a purpose of what he called

DEPRAVED FIGHT BETWEEN MINERS AND ROBBERS IN CALIFORNIA.—The Mountain Democrat, (Placerville,) publishes in an extra an account of a fearful and bloody encounter between three miners and eleven robbers, near Rock Canon, some forty miles from Placerville. It is an account that seems almost incredible, but it is signed by twelve men who represent themselves as having sat on a coroner's jury upon the bodies of the slain;

and three of them say they were eye-witnesses of the fight from a distance, being hunting upon a neighboring hill. The account is, in substance, that three miners, James C. McDonald, of Alabama, Dr.
Bolivar A. Sparks, of Mississippi, and Capt. Jonathan R. Davis, of South Carolina, were traveling on foot and within a mile of a large camp of miners, when they were fired upon by a band of eleven robbers who arose from ambush near the trail. McDonald was killed or the first fire. Davis and Sparks returned the fire with their revolvers, but after Sparks had fired twice he fell severely wounded. Davis who is described as a large man, and seems to be a man of great courage and self-possession, and skilled with weapons, maintained the fight singlehanded, killing a robber at every shot of his revolver, until both parties had exhausted their shots.
Four of the robbers—all that survived—then charged upon him with their knives.
He stood firm until they got within about four steps of him, and then sprung upon them with a large bowie knife, warded off their blows, mortally wounded three of them, and slightly wounded and disarmed the fourth. The account states that seven of the robbers were shot through the head, and that Capt. Davis had nineteen bullet holes through his hat and eleven through his coat and shirt, but that he received only two slight flesh wounds.— Exchange.

We felt that there was but little hope for the boy, and the youthful appearance of the attorney who had volunteered his defence, gave no encouragement, as we learned that it was the young man's maiden plea—his first address. He appeared greatly confused, and reached to a desk near him, from which he took the Bible that had been used to solemnize the testimony. This movement was received with general laughter and taunting remarks—among which we heard a harsh fellow close by us cry out:
"He forgets where he is. Thinking to take hold of some ponderous law book, he has made a mistake and got the Bible."

The remark made the young attorney flush with anger, and turning his flashing eye upon the audience, he convinced them it was no mistake, saying:
"Justice wants no other book."
His confusion was gone, and instantly he was as calm as the sober judge on the bench.

The Bible was opened, and every eye was upon him, as he quietly but leisurely turned over the leaves. Amidst a breathless silence he read the jury this sentence:
"Lead us not into temptation."

We felt our heart throb at the sound of these words. The audience looked at each other without speaking—the jury mutely exchanged glances, as the appropriate quotation carried the moral to their hearts.

Then followed an address, which, for its pathetic eloquence, we have never heard excelled. Its influence was like magic. We saw the guilty accusers leave the room in fear of personal violence.

The prisoner looked hopeful—the mother smiled again—and, before its conclusion, there was not an eye in the courtroom that was not moist. The speech, affecting to that degree which caused tears, held its hearers spell-bound.

The little time that was necessary to transpire before the verdict of the jury could be learned, was a period of great anxiety and suspense. But when their whispered consultation ceased, and these happy words, Not Guilty, came from the foreman, they passed like a thrill of electricity from lip to lip—the austere dignity of the court was forgotten, and not a voice was there but join ed in the acclamation that baffled the lad's release.

The young lawyer's first plea was a successful one. He was soon a favorite, and now represents his district in Congress.
The lad has never ceased his grateful remembrances—and we, by the affecting scene attempted to be described, have often been led to think how manifold greater is the crime of the tempter than of the tempted.

Violetta and Allendorf.

A ONE HORSE NOVEL.

Violetta started convulsively, and turned her tear-drenched eyes wildly upon the speaker; for to her there seemed something strangely familiar in those low, rich tones. Their eyes met—his beaming with love and tenderness, hers gleaming with wild uncertainty.

"Violetta!"

"Allendorf!"

And the beautiful girl sank, from excess of joy, upon his noble heart, throbbing with the pure, holy, delicious love of other days. Allendorf bent tenderly over her, and bathed her pure white temples with the gushing tears of deep, though sudden joy. While doing this, Violetta's father, Rip Van Snort, was seen approaching the lovers with a frown. Allendorf saw the aged patriarch, and with one leap cleared the bannisters and rushed down stairs.
But Van Snort was not to be thus "done." He put after the flying Allendorf, and just as he was turning the corner of the red barn, gave him a lift with the flail that placed him on the "tother side of Jordan." Violetta, driven to distraction, threw herself upon the grass, and for a long, long hour, was deaf to every consolation.

A New Kind of Duel.

The New Orleans Crescent of a late date, says that a Frenchman, thinking his honor damaged by another Frenchman's insult, challenged the insulter to fight.
The challenged having tee choice of weapons, and standing in wholesome dread of "bullets and blades," as Bob Acres says, chose "hoop poles." The Crescent describes the affair thus:

"The friends of the parties arranged the preliminaries after the usual fashion of combats of honor, and on Tuesday, seconds and principals went in cabs to a field on the Genilly road. The combatants were stripped of their superfluous garments, and stationed at a pole's length apart. Each stood with his pole erect firmly grasped in both hands, and at the word given by the seconds they went to work. It was a fine thing to behold that fight with hoop poles! The duelists displayed considerable science for amateurs in that kind of fighting, cutting, thrusting and clashing their weapons, much as we read the champions of by-gone days used to do with their huge two-handed swords.
Still they succeeded in battering each other severely, and would have made a bloody affair of it but for the interference of the seconds, who upon a point of punctillie, took a bout with the hoops themselves.

"The wounded honor of all was healed at last, but it will be some days before their swelled and bruised heads and shoulders are healed. This is no fancy sketch, but an actual occurrence narrated to us by a person who witnessed it. We commend it to the attention of all who are in trouble or feel their honor in danger.

FANNY FERN DAGUERRETYPE.—She is full 40, is Fanny. Sports curls like a girl of 17. They are auburn—poetically so.
Has a keen, flashing eye. Nose between Greek and Roman—rather thin and rather good looking. Cheeks with a good deal, (quite too much) coloring—comes of rouge. Bad taste, but no business of ours. Lips well turned, and indicative of firmness rather than of—sugar. Chin handsomely chiseled. Whole countenance betokens a woman of spirit and high nature generally. Form fine chest a model; not surpassed. Carriage graceful and stately. Rather tall and emphatically genteel. Pretty feet. Ankle to match.
Hand small. Likes to show it. Dresses in the cut and dash school. Fond of ribbons, laces, and machinery, etc., generally. Talks rapidly. Is witty and brilliant—cutting and lashing. Proud as Lucifer. Fond of fun. Hates most of her relations. Treats her father and Nat. almost brutally. Has three as pretty girls as ever were curls. Is proud of them, and justly. Is heartless. Is a flirt. Lives in clover. Is worth $20,000.
Got it by pen and ink. When passing the streets, takes eight eyes out of ten. On the whole—wonderful woman is Fanny.—

One editor observes that "it is a solemn thing to be married," to which another responds that "it is a great deal more solemn not to be!" Matrimony must be a solemn subject to contemplate, if both these opinions are correct.

truth, the next good sense, the third good humor, and the fourth wit.

The California State Prison Out- break.

The following is Gen. Estil's statement of the origin of the outbreak: "About 6 o'clock on Wednesday morning, as the State prisoners, quarrying stone at Mare Island were proceeding to their work in a body, some sixty of them made a rush for a small schooner lying at the wharf, and succeeded in taking possession of her. In the struggle between the prisoners and the guards, about twenty-one managed to get on board and shove off. They pulled her exactly behind another vessel sailing in the harbor, and by keeping her in that position prevented the gunners at the cannon from firing, as the people on the other vessel, attracted by curiosity, came on deck in such a way that the guard would be compelled to risk killing them if they fired. After drifting and pulling about four hundred yards, the tide placed them in range, when the first cannon was fired, missing the vessel some two feet.

The cannon was then loaded with grape, and at the second discharge several shots passed through the ranks of prisoners, doing some execution. It is said some were thrown overboard, supposed of course to be killed. The third shot missed, and the guard placed the other prisoners in their cells, and prepared to follow the fugitives with a whale-boat kept for that purpose. Eleven started in pursuit, and succeeded in cutting the fugitives off from Point San Pablo, just above Red Rock, and forced them to land on the first point above on the Contra Costa side. The guards landed some ten minutes after, when a running fight ensued for several miles. A few of the prisoners were killed and several badly wounded. The guard continued to follow them all night, and were still in hot pursuit yesterday. Capt. Estes, of the guard states that the prisoners, in attempting to escape seized on Capt. Pullam, 1st Assistant Captain of the Guard, and took him into the vessel with them, in order to prevent the guard from firing. This did not however, have the desired effect, for the guard, some of whom are the best marksmen in the State, selected their men and made terrible havoc. Capt. Pullam was shot through the hand and arm before he would ask the guard to cease their fire, when his request was complied with. He was taken to Contra Costa with them and left, where he still remains severely wounded.

After the convicts landed at Contra Costa, they were vigorously attacked by the guard, who continued to fire upon them without mercy. To avoid the united fire of the guard, they separated, and a portion of them proceeded northwards to Point Pinole, about twelve miles from Martinez, while another portion fled south-wards, towards Oakland. The Sheriff of Contra Costa has started with a large posse of armed citizens in pursuit of the desperadoes near Martinez. The Sheriff and citizens of Alameda are also actively engaged in the search for those who came down the coast. The wretches deserve no quarters and should receive none.

Before daylight yesterday morning, twelve of the convicts, on horseback, all well armed with knives, galloped down to the beach about four miles north of Oakland, and hastily dismounting, proceeded to take possession of a small trading schooner lying at a temporary landing place near by. No one was on board the schooner except the master, who was suddenly awakened, and before he could comprehend the meaning of the disturbance, hurried ashore. The whole gang then went to work, and threw overboard the freight of the schooner, consisting of about four tons of wheat, belonging to Dr. Chamblin. Having accomplished which, they let go their fastenings, and stood up the Bay in the direction of San Jose. Several of the fugitives, the captain says, appeared to be severely wounded.

A Chilean, who reached Oakland about day-break, states that he encountered the convicts a few miles from the beach, and that they compelled him under pain of death, to conduct them to the spot where they took the schooner. Many of the fugitives have obtained arms by plundering the ranchos in their flight, and will probably make a desperate resistance.— Officers have been dispatched to the neighborhood of Alviso to intercept those in the schooner. Should they land on either side of the Bay, they will find the citizens at all points aroused and prepared to give them a warm reception.

When a man comes home and tries to the fire with the spout of a coffee pot, attempts to wind up the clock with his boot

a cold boiled potato in his hand to light him to bed, and prefers to sleep in his boots and hat, you may reasonably infer that he has been making the acquaintance of some very friendly people.

"I Always Pay the Cash."

A good anecdote illustrative of the beneficial direction which strong impressions made in early youth sometimes gives to the habits of later life, was told in our hearing the other day, by one for many years a resident of this community, with the reputation of being among its most shrewd and successful business men; and who had no suspicion that the little narrative, which he related for private entertainment merely, would ever be embodied in a newspaper paragraph.

"His father," he said, "was a hard-working farmer of strict integrity, striving by industry and economy to bring up and educate a large family of sons and daughters in comfort and respectability. He lived on what was then almost the frontier of civilization, at a time when 'stores' were few, broad-cloths high, home-spun the prevailing wear, and the purchase of a new suit of clothes one of the important events in a man's life—to be carefully deliberated upon previous to the occurrence, and referred to as an epoch ever afterwards."

"I," he continued, "had just completed my eighteenth year—a period at which my father had promised, in consideration of my industry for the twelve months preceding, to give me an entire new 'rig' of 'store clothes' from head to foot. A happy boy was I, as, on the Saturday morning following my eighteenth birthday, the old grey mare was carrying me slowly but surely through the fifteen miles of almost fathomless March mud that lay between my father's house and the store where I was to make my purchase; still happier when standing at the counter, the glossy broadcloth rolled up and under my arm, and the twenty dollars with which my father had provided me on starting, transferred to the till of the trader. I supposed my whole errand was accomplished and was just about to leave for home, when the store-keeper startled me with the question, 'what will you have for trimmings?' Unsophisticated as I was in the business of shopping, it had never occurred to me that broadcloth was not the only ingredient in a coat, or that it would be proper to save something from my funds on hand for lining, padding, or facing. So here I was unexpectedly stuck. I saw that so far as my coat was concerned, I might as well have no cloth at all, as mere cloth without buttons, thread, &c., and yet my money was all gone. What should I do?

In this dilemma the trader kindly came to my aid. He offered to let me have what trimmings were necessary and charge my father with them. I assented to this proposal not without some misgivings.— This "charging" was something that I had never heard mentioned in my father's family; still I had a sort of a confused notion that the effect of it would be to run the old gentleman in debt, and I had often heard him say that he abhorred debt as he did the gallows, considering it the sure road to ruin. However, having no other alternative, I suffered the store-keeper to select the trimmings, permitted him to "charge" them at his own prices, and left, feeling considerably less elation during my homeward, than I had done during my outward journey.

The next morning my purchases were displayed. My mother and sisters admired the goods, but my father asked after the prices. Step by step he went into the details of the bargain until he ascertained conclusively that the broadcloth alone must have cost the money I had taken with me. This naturally led to the inquiry how I had purchased the trimmings; and when with faltering tongue I had told him of the kindness of the trader, a clap of thunder would not have startled me more than the scene which followed.
What! run him in debt—him—who had never owed anybody a cent in his life!— Was he now in his old age to be run in-debt by a good-for-nothing son! Back I should go the next morning, (I should go that day if it were not Sunday,) and pay every cent of it, and never—never so long as I lived should I presume to have any things charged to him again! And back I did go, and by my own mortification, the jokes of the little ones and a ride through the mud and cold of thirty miles, was the lesson so impressed on my memory that not to this day have I suffered myself, even when my desires were most pressing and cash payment most inconvenient, to open a book account; and to the strict observance of this rule I am disposed to attribute not a little of my almost uniform success."—Dayton Gazette.

Beautiful Extract.

The following beautiful tribute to Woman, was written several years ago, by a contributor, I believe, to the Saturday Post. It occurs in a tale of touching interest, entitled "The Broken Heart." Its author, Dr. F. J. Stratton, now, or at least was several years since, a resident of Ohio, contributed in years past, many beautiful things to American Literature, over the non de plume of RASSELAT.

"Oh! the priceless value of the love of a true woman! Gold cannot purchase a gem so precious! Titles and honors confer upon the heart no such a serene happiness. In our darkest moments, when disappointment and ingratitude with corroding care gather thick around, and even the gaunt form of poverty menaces with his skeleton finger, it gleams around the soul with an angel's smile. Time can-net mar its brilliancy, distance but strengthens its influence, bolts and bars cannot limit its progress, it follows the prisoner into his dark cell and sweetens the homely morsel that appeases his hunger, and in the silence of midnight it plays around his heart and in his dreams he holds to his bosom the form of her who loves on still, though the world has turned coldly from him. The couch made by the hand of a loved one, is so soft to the weary limbs of the sick sufferer, and the potion administered by the same hand looses half its bitterness. The pillow carefully adjusted by her, brings repose to the fevered brain, and her words of kind encouragement revives the sinking spirit. It would almost seem that God, compassionating woman's first great frailty, had planted this jewel in her breast, whose heaven-like influences should cast into forgetfulness man's remembrance of the Fall, by building up in his heart another Eden, where perennial flowers forever bloom, and chrysalis waters gush from exhaustless fountains."

Curious Facts in Human Life.

The number of languages spoken in the world amounts to 3,064. The inhabitants of the globe profess more than 1000 different religions. The number of men is about equal to the number of women.
The average of human life is about thirty-three years. One quarter die previous to the age of seven years; one half before reaching seventeen; and those who pass this age enjoy a felicity refused to one half the human species. To every 1,000 persons, only 1 reaches 100 years of life;
to every 100, only 6 reach the age of 65;
and not more than 1 in 500 lives to 80 years of age. There are on the earth 1,000,000,000 inhabitants, and of these 33,333,333 die every year; 94,824 every day; 3,732 every hour; and 60 every minute, or 1 every second. These losses are about balanced by an equal number of births. The married are longer lived than the single, and, above all, those who observe a sober and industrious conduct.
Tall men live longer than short ones.
Women have more chances of life in their favor, previous to being fifty years of age, than men, but fewer afterwards. The number of marriages is in proportion of 75 to every 100 individuals. Marriages are most frequent after the equinoxes; that is, during the months of June and December. Those born in the spring are generally more robust than others. Births and deaths are more frequently by night than by day. The number of men capable of bearing arms is calculated at one-third the population.

SAGACITY OF AN ELEPHANT.—We passed an elephant working on a road, and it was most interesting to watch the half-reasoning brute; he was tearing out large roots from the ground, by means of a hook and chain fastened round his neck with a species of collar. He pulled like a man, or rather like a number of men, with a succession of steady hauls, throwing his whole weight into it, and almost going down on his knees, turning round every now and then to see what progress he was making. Really, the instinct displayed by the elephant in its domestic state is little short of reason in its fullest sense.
There is no doubt they do think, and also act upon experience and memory, and their capacity seems to increase in an extraordinary degree from their intercourse with man. The remarkable nicety and trouble they take in squaring and arranging the blocks of heva stone when building a bridge, is incredible, unless seen; they place them with as much skill as any mason, and will return two or three times to give the finishing touches, when they think the work is not quite perfect. They retire a few yards and consider what they have effected, and you almost fancy you can detect them turning their sagacious old noddies on one side, and shutting one eye in a knowing manner, to detect any

A western "pote" gets off the following explanatory of a steamboat explosion:

"The engine groaned,
The wheels did creak,
The steam did whistle
And the boiler did leak.
The boiler was examined,
They found it was rusted,
And all on a sudden
The old thing busted."

LEBANON, KY.

Wednesday Morning, Feb. 14, 1855.

We have been informed by one of the gentlemanly Engineers who superintend the first ten miles of the Railroad, that eight out of the ten are rapidly under way. This is as it should be, if they intend to do the work, the only right way to do is to push it through as fast as possible. We presume that the other contractors are equally industrious and energetic. We are also informed that the work on the main stem, is going bravely on; and those who are posted up, say that our branch will be ready for the iron, as soon as the rails reach the junction on the main stem.

Our young friends will remember that to-day is St. Valentine's day. We hope our numerous friends will not overrun us with these missives, this year as they did last. Spare, O spare our blushes. Divers are the opinions concerning the origin of this beautiful custom. Some affirm that it sprang from a custom among the heathens. That on a certain day in each year the maidens and youths met before the altar of their favorite idol, and drew lots for each other; and when thus paired off it was considered to be sanctioned by the august personage in whose presence the lots were drawn, and consequently held inviolate.

Others say that it originated with the maids and youths of Rome, who chose St. Valentine as the patron saint of the marriage vow. We have seen other theories, but have forgotten them. But, be its origin what it may, we should dislike to see this poetic custom grow into disuse.

We had the pleasure, on Monday evening last, of hearing Mr. Brown, of Lexington Ky. deliver a Temperance address. Mr. B. is an unassuming gentleman, who is employed at the present time putting up patent mills in our county. He is a forcible—we may say eloquent speaker, and his whole soul seems wrapped up in the temperance cause. He is calculated to do the cause which he advocates a great deal of good.

He made no personal attack upon the licensed vender of intoxicating liquors; but advocated the repeal of the present license laws. And when we consider that the address was entirely extemporaneous, we cannot but pronounce it as admirably done; and we feel warranted in this assertion, by the intense interest displayed by his crowded audience, which was repeatedly manifested by deafening rounds of applause.

The office of the Georgetown Herald has been mobbed, and the editor burnt—in effigy, by the brave youths of the Georgetown College. The cause of this daring act, was the fact of the aforesaid editor having had the presumption, the affront, and withal, the temerity, to criticise the aforesaid students' peculiar views on the subject of papacy. Speaking of a gun, puts us in mind of shooting. While we were sitting quietly at our humble domicile, the other night, previous to retiring, we were rather startled by two stones hitting the house at an interval of five minutes. Now, we would not have thought of this again, if it had not been done before; but the repetition of such a thing, and so often, is singular, to say the least of it. Now, the fact of the matter is we would hate, exceedingly to injure any one, but the perpetrator of the pleasant would, we feel convinced, hate to carry off in his carcase six or eight buck shot, and we should be loath to administer such pills, in order to work him off. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

We have been receiving the Louisville Daily Times, for the past two weeks. This paper has been, as it should, rapidly gaining ground, of late. It is a bold and fearless defender of the rights of American citizens, and of the glorious old Constitution. They go in for the rights guaranteed by that revered instrument, and most ably do they do their duty, their whole duty, and nothing but their duty. In a word, the Times is a most excellent paper, and is never found behind its competitors, in the news of the day, markets, &c. We thank the gentlemanly proprietors for their unasked courtesy.

"Excuse haste and a bad pen!" as the pig said when he broke from his sty and ran off.

P. S. If we catch any of our exchanges purloining the above, we'll sue them for—lander.

Mr. Fogle, the old gentleman who was burnt out of house and home a few weeks ago, has, by this time, fixed up a comfortable house for the reception of his family. Mr. Hamilton, the gentleman who met with a like misfortune, a few days afterwards, is now living in a new house. This is the way they do things up in this county.

Mr. B. Selby, did not hand in his communication, answering the interrogations propounded to him in the Post of the 3th ult. It will appear in our next.

Every paper that comes to us from the great cities of this Union, contain heart-rending accounts of thousands of human beings, suffering for want of the necessities of life. Every breeze that fans our cheek, bears upon its bosom the mournful cries of the victims of starvation. Eyes that were unwont to weep, now glisten with the falling tear. Strong men, to whom fear has ever been a stranger, whose proud heads have never bowed to human will, and whose stout hearts have successfully borne many a hard rub, new crouches, and cringes, and—begs. The sight of the wife of his bosom and her little children clinging around her emaciated person crying for bread, scatters to the winds the dignity that sits enthroned upon the strong man's brow, and in his concern for them, forgets the pride which dwells within his soul.

Oh! the cries, and tears, and sobs of want, daily ascending to the invisible throne, can never half be told. May he who "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb," take them into his care and keeping.

A CASE FOR FARMERS.—We learn that a gentleman of Clark, S. Chorn, Sr., lost, within the last fifteen days, nine of his best horses and a fine Jack, with an extraordinary disease, unknown to the farmers, but supposed to be inflammation of the lungs. The first discovery of the disease has the appearance and effect of what is known as the "blind staggers," upon the animal, proving fatal almost immediately, in every attack. Some of his neighbors are losing stock by the same disease.—Mt. Sterling Whig 9th inst.

Quite a number of valuable horses have died in Louisville we understand, from the same disease. Is there no remedy—who knows? It is a matter of great importance, and should be published for the benefit of the community, generally.

A destructive fire occurred in Bloomfield on Saturday the 3d inst., which entirely destroyed the large frame building known as Polk's Tavern; also a frame dwelling adjoining, the property of Mrs. Green, a widow lady of that town. Some furniture was also destroyed. Loss not ascertained.

THE MAINE LAW IN MAINE.—It is the impression of many that, in the State of Maine, where the "Maine law" originated and has been in operation for several years, crime has wonderfully decreased. Such, however, it appears, is not the case, according to an official statement. A report on the State finances, made to the Legislature a few days ago, complains of the increased cost of criminal prosecutions, and states that they have more than doubled within the past six months. In 1845 the cost of criminal prosecutions were $14,926; in 1850, $23,578; in 1851, $26,877; in 1852, $33,356; in 1853, $35,433; in 1854, $35,539.—Lou. Dem.

VIRUS FROM A CORPSE.—Dr. Miller, who attended Professor Mine during his sickness, for the satisfaction of the friends of the deceased, in order to convince them of the nature of Mr. Mine's complaint, dissected the body, and, in doing so, inflicted a small gash upon one of the fingers of his right hand. At the time it was disregarded, but a day or two afterwards the arm became very painful, and commenced swelling. Yesterday morning the symptoms were so alarming that, we understand amputation of the limb, was deemed necessary to save his life.—Cin. Eng. 1th.

IMPORTANT LAW SUIT AMONG SHOWMEN.—BARNUM VS. SPALDING.—We understand that Barnum has commenced suit against Dr. Spalding, for several thousand damages, in consequence of the death of a Giraffe, on board of the "Floating Palace" at New Orleans, some time since. Spalding it seems, had hired the animal with the privilege of buying; but in transferring it to the "Palace," notwithstanding every precaution was used to guard against all accidents or injury, he was accidentally drowned. Barnum claims the accident occurred in consequence of the negligence of Spalding, and claims damages for the value, about $10,000. On the other hand, Spalding claims that every possible precaution and diligence were used, and as the animal was under the charge of a keeper appointed by Barnum, if there was any carelessness or negligence, it was through the carelessness of such keeper, that the death of the animal occurred, and that Barnum is liable for the damages and loss, estimated at $20,000, suffered by Spalding. Both parties have the reputation of being rather shrewd in their way, and as both are well able to pay the lawyers, we hope they will both obtain justice, and get the worth of the money they pay them.—Albany Argus.

We have republished the beautiful carol on account of some bad mistakes which occurred in it when first published.

ARRIVAL OF THE ATLANTIC.

New York, Feb. 9.

The steamer Atlantic has arrived. Affairs at Sevastopol are unchanged. The peace conference will be opened in the middle of February. Lord John Russell has threatened a second dispatch.

Brown & Shipley report the tone of the Liverpool market tenacious, owing to the reported embarrassments on change.

On Friday night Lord John Russell gave an explanation of his conduct. The opinion is that the whole ministry must go out.

Public feeling seems tending toward peace. The Vienna conference will not meet until the middle of February.

Affairs before Sevastopol are quite unchanged. The British army is in a wretched condition, caused by mismanagement. The report that a battle had been fought was not correct.

The Swedish army will be placed on immediate war footing.

Negotiations continue between Austria and Prussia respecting the Germanic army.

The Queen of Sardinia is dead.

The steamer Great Britain arrived at Liverpool from Australia with £750,000.

There were numerous rumors of failures at Liverpool, but they were supposed to be exaggerated. The Liverpool cotton market was influenced thereby.

Consuls declined in consequence of Lord John Russell's resignation, and closed at 9 1/4.

New York, Feb. 9.—The Atlantic is still outside the bar and will not probably come in to-night. Efforts are making to reach her, but as yet they have proved unsuccessful, the mud and tide being against it.

Sevastopol dates are to the 14th of January. No movements had occurred. The Russians made two sorties, and were repulsed with considerable loss.

The weather has been cold, but at the latest dates it was milder.

Amongst the passengers by the Atlantic is the Hon. H. G. Upham.

The chief interest of news by the Atlantic centres in the proceedings of the British Parliament.

Considerable reinforcements are reaching the allies.

Liprandi again advanced his outposts to Tchernomir with 40,000 Russians and 80 guns.

Letters state that the French had mined the flag-staff battery, and were only awaiting a favorable opportunity to blow it up.

Sickness was increasing in the camps. Menchikoff is reported to have said that his troops might rest, as January February and March will fight his battles better than he can.

The Russians have repaired and reoccupied Quarantine fort.

Gen. Brown is about to resume his command in the Crimea.

St. Petersburg letters of January 18th, says the Allies are going to establish a hospital for 2,000 men at Smyrna, and an establishment for the convalescent.

The Russians report numerous desertions from the Allies to their ranks.

An Odessa letter of the 9th says that the Russians will shortly assume the offensive in the Crimea, having received the necessary reinforcements.

Large bodies of Russians have been ordered to concentrate at Perchoff with a view of attacking Eupatoria.

It was reported at Vienna, on the 20th, that a battle had been fought before Sevastopol, and that the Russians were victorious. Authentic advices from Balaklava, of the next day, contradict the rumor positively.

It is asserted that Omar Pasha's forces would commence operations on the 18th of January, advancing under the cover of the artillery of the fleet along the coast.

The last of the Turkish convoy's left Varna on the 14th, for Balaklava.

The French eighty gun ship, Heinsforth, which ran ashore on the 4th of November, has been turned into a fort of great use to the Allies.

A despatch from Menschikoff, dated on the 17th, and published in St. Petersburg, is to the following effect:

The siege operations do not advance.—Two successful night sorties were made on the 13th and 15th.

"We took fourteen English and French prisoners, and the allies lost a considerable number in killed. Arab deserters say that the Turks are treated with very little consideration by the allies."

The Patrie says that the recent passage of the Danube by the Russians has given rise to a demand by Austria for an explanation from Gortschakoff. Orders have been sent to Count Coromin to be present.

The Russians are recommending a campaign on the Danube.

The Admirals have declared all ports of the Black Sea and the Sea of Orzoff in a state of strict blockade, and have captured several ships, laden with provisions for the Russians.

The screw steamer Black Sea, with a submarine cable for connecting Varna with Balaklava, put back to Norwich, damaged.

Asia.—The appointment of Ismail Pacha to the command of the army at Autolia, has produced the best results upon the troops.

The Turks have opened communication with Schamyl, whose force numbers 20,000.

The free navigation of the Danube. 3d. The revision of the treaty of 1841, to attach more completely the existence of the Ottoman Empire to the balance of Europe. 4th. The collective guarantee of the five powers for the conservation and the observance of religious privileges of the different christian communities without distinction of form of worship.

Russia claims the right to participate in the Vienna conference, in her capacity of a great European power, has sent a protest to Vienna, Paris and London, against any resolution passed without her participation.

The Sardinia troops furnished by Sardinia number 20,000.

Samuel P. Collins, of Pennsylvania, consul for the Empire of Morocco, vice George V. Brown recalled.

BRUTAL MURDER IN PAULDING COUNTY, OHIO.—A most inhuman and brutal affair occurred up in Paulding county, the particulars of which, as related to us, are substantially as follows: A man and his wife, residing near Carlow, having no children of their own had taken the child of a neighboring widow woman, a little girl between four and five years of age, to raise. From the time of taking the girl, these fiends subjected her to the most inhuman treatment, such as divesting her of her scanty clothing, turning her out of doors, and leaving her exposed in that situation for hours in the coldest nights of this winter. This brutal conduct was indulged in until the child was frozen so as to be unable to leave the filthy mattress which was her only bed. A neighbor passing the house, and hearing groans proceeding from it, entered for the purpose of ascertaining the cause, and was informed by the woman (?) that the child had fallen into the fire some time previous, and had been so badly burned as to be unable to leave her bed. The neighbor insisted upon seeing the child, and upon entering the apartment, a scene of human suffering met his sight which no pen can well describe. There lay the little sufferer, writhing and groaning with pain, her body covered with running sores, and almost buried in the accumulated filth of days, her hair matted together, and the frozen flesh actually dropping from her bones! The humane neighbor immediately procured a physician, who pronounced the child to be frozen, and beyond the power of medicine. Her mother, who resided some six or eight miles distant, was informed of her child's situation, but the poor little creature was beyond the reach of a mother's love, and died within a few hours after her arrival.

An inquest was held upon the body of the child and the facts elicited which we have detailed above. The man was arrested and is now in jail, but the woman, on account of her delicate situation, is at large for the present. We hope that both the wretches may have that punishment meted out to them which their fiendish conduct so much deserves.—North West, (Napoleon, O.) February 2.

CHURCH ROBBER.—On Wednesday night, the German Catholic Church, on the corner of Grayson and Eighth streets, was entered by some sacrilegious villain, and robbed of a gold chalice and six fine silver candlesticks, used in the religious services. The fellow was interrupted while industriously engaged, by some one who was attracted to the church by a light at that unusual hour. The robber threatened to shoot the person, who prudently left and gave the alarm, the chevalier d'industrie escaping in the meantime. That individual will, no doubt, be caught some of these days robbing a churchyard.—Lou Democrat.

DEATH BY FREEZING.—We learn by a letter from a friend at White Sulphur, that Wm. R. Quarrell, a young man of intelligence and respectability—a native of Ireland, and school teacher in the vicinity of White Sulphur, Scott county—met a horrid fate in that neighborhood on the night of Monday, the 29th ult. He was found in an open field, early Tuesday morning, quite frozen, where it is supposed he had lain through the greater part of the night, but life not being extinct, he was conveyed to the nearest house, where medical and other assistance was promptly rendered, and every possible effort made to save him, which only served to prolong his miserable existence till 4 o'clock, p. m., the following day, when he expired in the greatest agony, doubtless a victim to excessive drink, though not an habitual inebriate. He left no family except a wife, to whom he had been recently married.—Frank. Yeoman.

The Brave Boys of Georgetown College.

In yesterday's Times was a short telegraphic dispatch from Georgetown, stating that the editor of the Georgetown Herald had been burned in effigy, and that his office had been assaulted. It appears that a student of Georgetown College had, in some of the ceremonies appertaining to that institution, seen proper to depart from the ordinary routine of academic duties, and make a know nothing speech. The editor of the Herald took occasion to comment both upon the impropriety and silliness of the speech. At the presumption of the editor, the chivalrous students were exceeding wrath.—Their heroic blood was up, and something must "be did." They snuffed up vengeance, even as their predecessors snuffed up the east wind.

Now mark the result. These ferocious know nothings all united against one man—oh! chivalry!!—and disguising themselves, oh! brave know nothings!!—accompanied by a band of music,—delightful!—proceeded to the office of the Georgetown Herald, and there, oh! Richard Coeur de Lion!!—deliberately threw,—oh! Ned de Buntline!!—three bricks at the offending office of the Georgetown Herald. What a sublime spectacle it must have been, to be sure. We think we see these noble youths, whose trusting mothers had sent them to Georgetown—we think we see them arrayed before the walls of the Herald office with their faces hid behind a mask—brave fellows!!—dooming to destruction that devoted office, with an indefinite number of particular bricks. Glorious! The siege of Sevastopol was nothing in comparison. The glorious charge at Balakava fades into indistinctness when compared with the heroic acts of these Georgetown know nothings. We are compelled to record their exploit as unparalleled. After throwing three bricks at the editor's office, these brave young men find their vengeance unappeased. Bricks could but faintly express the rage which was burning in their chivalrous bosoms. They resolved on something still more desperate. What do you think it was? Our blood almost curdles with horror while we write it; but the truth must out. These "terrible nothings" (vide Journal) next proceeded to burn some old clothes stuffed with straw, which they were cruel enough to consider as the veritable editor of the Herald. It may be unnecessary for us to say that the editor of the Herald was not in the old clothes. Had he been there, we have every reason in the world for believing that these youthful and wrathful know nothings could have fled before his single little finger.—But they feared no straw, not they, and they stood and saw the whole bundle consumed, witnessing the terrible sight through two little holes made in a piece of paste-board.

This is by far the brightest and most glorious achievement of the know nothings in Kentucky. The assault on the Irish woman in Lexington was some, but the brave boys of Georgetown have left that exploit far behind. Mr. Herald, can't you give us their names? we are ready to hand them down to posterity, and contribute our mite towards honoring the illustrious heroes of Georgetown College.—Lou. Times.

When a woman writes, (says Heine,) she has always one eye on her paper, while the other is directed to some man. This is true of all authoresses, except the Countess Hahnbahn, who has only one eye.

"Mr. Skeekies, you say you were held to bail for staving a hole into Mr. Jacob's row-boat. Does the court understand that a lawsuit grew out of the collision?"

"No, your Honor. By being held to bail, I mean to be understood that Mr. Jacob's died me to the boat and made me dip the water out of her."

"No levity, Mr. Smithers. Crier, call the next witness." Snuggle in court. In the midst of which Smithers takes a seat and looks inquiringly at the stove-pipe.

If all the world's a stage, and men and women merely players, where's the audience and orchestra to come from? That's a stunner. Well, 'tis nothing shorter.

There is a maiden lady in Connecticut who is so exactly nice in her notions of female modesty, that she turned off her washerwoman because she put her clothes in the same tub with those of a young man.

A gentleman was promenading a fashionable street with a bright little boy at his side, when the latter called out—"Oh, pa, there goes an editor!" "Hush, hush!" said the father, "pray don't make sport of the poor man—heaven only knows what you may come to yet."

The man who is too poor to take a paper, has bought a slab-sided dog, an old shot-gun, and a twenty shilling gold watch. He educates his children in the street, and boards his shanghai upon his neighbors.

—A GENIUS out in Iowa has just in- vented a wooden horse that will jump thirty miles an hour. The motive power is a bag of fleas. Who says this is not an age of progress.

—It is rumored in Mexico that Eng- land has bought the peninsula of Yuca- tan, and, in consideration, assumes the debts owed by Mexico to citizens of Great Britain. It is also rumored that Santa Anna meditates selling another slice of territory to the United States.

—There was a serious riot in Que- bec, at a municipal election, on the 9th inst. Several citizens were cruelly beat- en. The military were called out. One of the Gavazzi rioters was engaged, and was arrested.

—An eastern paper says that a for- mer citizen of Louisville, T. P. Shaffner, the proprietor of the World Girdle Tel- egraph, expects to leave again for Rus- sia about the first of April, to complete his arrangements for the construction of his lines through the territories of the Czar in Russia and Asia.

—We learn from the Holly Spring (Miss.) Empire Democrat that a man by the name of NATHAN ELDEN, having avowed his abolition opinions, "and slandered, without cause, the good name, fame, and character of some of the first citizens of Marshall county," was recently visited with summary punishment publicly ad- ministered. The immediate cause of the chastisement seems to have been a slan- der uttered against Mr. ROBERT B. ALEX- ANDER and family. Mr. A. being confined to his bed by severe sickness, a commit- tee of the citizens of Holly Springs took the matter in hand and administered the punishment—a public cowhiding.

—Miss Mitford, the celebrated au- thress, died in England on the 10th of January.

Thirty cords of wood, a donation to the poor, by E. D. Hobbs, Esq., of Juf- son county, was received free gratis per the Louisville and Frankfort railroad yester- day. There will be more coming to- day. —Low. Dem. 13th.

AN EARTHQUAKE IN VIRGINIA.—The shock of an earthquake is said to have been felt in several places in Virginia on Friday morning. The Richmond Post says:

At Clarksville there was a rumbling, rattling sound which resembled somewhat the noise made by a four horse coach in rapid motion, or a wagon with an empty body, running rapidly down a rough hill. Crockery standing on the table was vis- ibly shaken.

At Wylesburg the houses were shaken, and one gentleman was waked up by the severe jar and noise. Alarmed by the cracking sound of his house, he jumped out of bed considerably frightened, and ran out to see if the house was not on fire at the top.

In Prince Edward, we learn, the shock was still greater.

In Halifax it was sufficient to wake per- sons from sleep.

We are surprised to learn that no per- son in Richmond was aware of an earth- quake in this region at all.

ONE CENT REWARD.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living in Lebanon, on the morning of Tuesday the 31st of October, 1854, a young lad named HENRY DELUINE McATEE.

Said boy was an indentured apprentice to me, to learn the art of printing. He is 14 or 15 years of age, slender made, and has a long, gang- ling, peculiar stride when walking. He has a very sheepish, green looking countenance, and is not of a printer. This is positively, to warn my fellow craftsmen and all others from harboring or employing said boy, as I shall most assuredly put the law in full force against such as do. I will give the above reward and no thanks to whoever will return him to me. Bardstown and Elizabethtown paper, please copy once or twice. W. W. JACK, Nov. 11. Ed. and Tre. of Post.

DR. GEOHEGAN'S EXTRACT OF HYDROPIPER, For Dyspepsia, Scrofula, and all impuri- ties of the blood.

Prepared by one of the Faculty.

THIS vegetable remedy which is now spreading to all parts of the country, is prepared by a graduate of one of the first Med- ical Schools in the West; a physician of high standing in his profession; and as such op- portune to empiricism or quackery as any one can be, as is shown by the fact that this re- cipe is published, and accompanies each bottle of the medicine; thus exonerating it from the charge of being a nostrum.

It is prescribed by Physicians, as will be seen by reference to the Circular and by the accompanying certificate.

Unlike Sarsaparilla the Hydropiper is quick in its action, the first bottle often producing wonderful results, as in the case of the negro girl of Mrs. Simmon's, of Louisville, who was relieved of Blindness in One Week! In short, it has excited the wonder and admi- ration of all who have used it, and wherever known stands at the head of all remedies for the following diseases:

Dyspepsia, Scrofula, White Swelling, Menstru- al Diseases or Negro Consumption, Scourvy, Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Sores, Ulcers, and all Cutaneous or Skin Diseases, all female irregularities and obstructions, Mercurial Diseases, Secondary Syphilis, General De- bility, and all disorders arising from impure blood and bad Habit of System.

For Female Complaints this remedy stands unrivalled. Its effects are wonderful. It is a slight stimulant and a powerful tonic and alterative.

As a beautifier of the complexion, in the cure of pimples and blotches, in producing a clear and beautiful skin, it is a much more safe and sure remedy than all the cosmetics and lotions in ex- istence. Try it, and you will never regret it. Do not lose confidence if it should seem at first to increase the disease—the general effect of the medicine being to drive all impurities to the surface, and by that means out of the sys- tem.

HARDENBURG, Ky., Oct. 6, 1851.

Dr. A. E. Gehegan—Dear Sir: I have exam- ined your re- cip for Compound Fluid Extract of Hydropiper, for the cure of Scrofula in all its forms, and other chronic affections, viz Rheu- matism, Female Weakness, &c. Having pre- scribed and watched its effects in many cases of the above diseases, and having always found it effectual, I most cheerfully recommend it to the afflicted as the best alterative and tonic I have ever used; altogether superior to Sarsapa- rilla, and any of its compounds.

Scissoring.

Pition of the letter "H" to the inhabitants of Kidminster, England—Protesting.

Whereas by you I have been driven from 'ouse, from 'ome, from 'ope, from 'eaven,

And placed by your most learned society in helix, languish, and anxiety; Nay, charged without one just pretence, With harroge and humpudence—I hear demand full restitution, And beg you'll mend your hel-o-cution.

A CONUNDRUM VERIFIED.

"Why's D like marriage?" asked the maid, Whose love to me is plighted; I blushed, of course, and hung my head, While she seem'd quite—delighted! "Come! answer me," continued she, "And don't be long about it! You stupid ninny, don't you see—We can't be wed without it!"

Patterson, the comedian, lent a brother actor two shillings, and when he made a demand for the sum, the debtor, turning peevishly from him, said, "Hang it, I'll pay you off to day, in some shape or other." Patterson good-humoredly replied, "I shall be much obliged to you, Tom; let it be as like two shillings as you can."

Everybody has heard of the famous echo of the Irishman, which when interrogated "How d'ye-de?" would answer, "Pretty well, I thank you," but we know of a real echo, which, if you ask it "What remedy is there for the evils under which we labor?" invariably answers "Labor!"

A few days ago, says the Toledo Blade, a smart little fellow of about seven summers, went up to a fruit stand, and raising on tiptoe peeped over at the fruit, remarking, as he extended a dime, "I think I'll buy a few apples to take home to the children."

A generous mind does not feel as if belonging to itself alone, but to the whole human race. We are born to serve our fellow-man. The sham sympathy of the world, however, stamps such a person as a good-natured, silly kind of a man, and some say—"fool for himself!" 'Tis as well to speak out plain.

Boys quarrel about everything. Master Mullony, the other day, threatened to "cave in" Johnny McCracken's head, because he, the latter, would not keep his feet out of the former's mud puddle.—How ridiculous. Almost as funny as the disputes which every now and then break out between Spain and Portugal.

It is affirmed by scientific gentlemen that the pressure of the times, if it could be used as a propelling power, would force a vessel across the Atlantic in twenty-four hours.

Mrs. Hollyhook thinks it rather queer that the falling of a little quicksilver in a glass tube should make the weather so awful cold.

Nor Bad.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Times, from Burlington, Vt., relates the following:

"I am reminded—speaking of cheese—of a little anecdote the stage-driver told me yesterday. We were passing an old farm house with an untidy yard, and dilapidated out-buildings, when he said—

"A Boston man got off a pretty cute speech to the owner of that place, t'other day."

"What was it?" I asked.

"Why, he called at the house to buy cheese, but when he came to look at the lot, he concluded he didn't want 'em, they were full of 'skippers."

So he made an excuse and was going away, when the farmer said to him—

"Look here mister; how can I get my cheese to Boston, the cheapest?"

The gentleman looked at the stuff a moment and saw the maggots squirming, and said,

"Well, I don't know; let 'em be a day or two, and you can drive 'em right down."

It seems to me the answer was somewhat pertinent to the occasion."

A western editor who is a bachelor, says—"We never cared a farthing about getting married, until we attended an old bachelor's funeral."

A Vermont Yankee has invented a pump by which horses and cows pump their own drinking water.

A hen-pecked husband declared that the longer he lived, the more he was smitten.

Hood could never believe that undertakers felt for the poor. "If they do, how comes it that they are always screwing them down?"

You have no business to have business with other people's business. Mind thy own business, for that is business enough for any reasonable business man.

An Excuse.—"Massa," said the black steward of a Marblehead captain, as they fell in with a homeward bound vessel, "I wish you'd write a few lines for me to send to the old woman, cos I can't write."

"Certainly," said the good natured skipper, taking his writing materials, "now what shall I say?"

Pompey told the story which he wished his wife to know, which his amanuensis faithfully recorded.

"Is that all, Pompey?" asked the captain, preparing to seal the letter.

"Yes, massa," replied he, showing his ivory, "thank you, but 'fore you close him just say, please 'euse bad spelling and writing, will ye?"

The captain appended the postscript as desired.

THE FIGHTING POWERS OF DIFFERENT NATIONS.—The French, proverbially a brave and excitable people, are brilliant and formidable in an attack. If repulsed, a reversion equally violent usually takes place, and would often prove fatal if it were not for the precaution of planting reserves. When these are not wanting, they are capable of being easily rallied, and their lively spirit is soon restored. The Russians are less excitable, but, nevertheless, in an attack they are not to be surpassed in bravery and perseverance by the troops of any European nation, with this advantage, that they appear to be incapable of panic, and, tho' they may be repulsed and defeated, they cannot be forced to run in confusion from the field of battle. The Prussian armies engaged in these campaigns were not, for the most part, very young soldiers; a spirit of enthusiasm pervaded their ranks, which rendered them capable of the most brilliant achievements. In the cases of defeat, the effect of momentary hurry and confusion, to which all young troops are liable, were less violent with them than the French; but, though easily rallied, and their patriotic enthusiasm soon restored, they could not rival the Russian stoicism in adversity. The Austrians, properly so called, were highly disciplined and brave, but the infantry of that race appeared deficient in energy when compared with the French or Prussians, and their physical powers could not be compared with that of the sturdy Russian soldiery. The Bohemians appeared to be somewhat more healthy and robust, but did not materially differ in point of national character from their Austrian brethren in arms. The Hungarian infantry were decidedly superior to both in point of energy and physical power, and the select corp of Grenadiers furnished by that nation, were equal, if not superior, to any in the field.—Cathcart's Commentaries.

TEMPTATION.—An aged Quakeress, the other afternoon, was seen intently gazing upon a piece of richly embroidered satin, displayed in a dry good store, in Grand Street. An Irishman passing, smiled as he saw the fascination upon the dame. "Ah," said he, "that's Satan tempting Eve."

Said a lady to her "loveyer" "I'm sure George, it's quite impossible you can have the least idea of what you are talking about; I'm sure I haven't, although I'm listening to you!" Candid soul.

This Literary Institution, founded in 1851, by the late Rev. WILLIAM BYRNE, and subsequently conducted for many years by the Jesuits, is now under the superintendence of the Right Rev. Bishop of Louisville, who will always take means to provide a suitable Faculty for carrying it on with a view to promote the greatest public good. Under the auspices of its previous conductors, the Institution has been instrumental in widely diffusing the blessings of a religious education throughout Kentucky and the adjoining States.—The steadiness of its patronage has been a constant evidence of the public approval. THE BRITISH PERIODICALS.

AND THE

FARMER'S GUIDE.

LEONARD SCOTT & CO.,

No. 54 Gold street, New York.

CONTINUE to publish the four leading British Quarterly Reviews and Blackwood's Magazine; in addition to which they have recently commenced the publication of a valuable Agricultural work, called the

"FARMER'S GUIDE TO SCIENTIFIC AND PRACTICAL AGRICULTURE."

By HENRY STEPHENS, F. R. S., of Edinburgh, author of the "Book of the Farm," &c., &c.; assisted by JOHN P. NORRIS, M. A., New Haven, Professor of Scientific Agriculture in Yale College, &c., &c.

This highly valuable work will comprise two large royal octavo volumes, containing over 1400 pages, with 18 or 20 splendid steel engravings, and more than 600 engravings on wood, in the highest style of the art, illustrating almost every implement of husbandry now in use by the best farmers, the best methods of plowing, planting, haying, harvesting, &c., &c., the various domestic animals in their highest perfection; in short the pictorial feature of the book is unique, and will render it of incalculable value to the student of Agriculture.

This work is being published in Semi-monthly Numbers, of 64 pages each, exclusive of the Steel engravings, and is sold at 25 cents each, or $5 for the entire work in numbers, of which there will be at least twenty-two.

The British Periodicals Re-published are as follows, viz:

The London Quarterly Review (Conservative).

The Edinburgh Review (Whig).

The North British Review (Free Church).

The Westminster Review (Liberal), and Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine (Tory).

Although these works are distinguished by the political shades above indicated, yet but a small portion of their contents is devoted to political subjects. It is their literary character which gives them their chief value, and in that they stand confessedly far above all other journals of their class. Blackwood, still under the masterly guidance of Christopher North, maintains its ancient celebrity, and is, at this time, unusually attractive, from the serial works of Bulwer and other literary notables, written for that magazine, and first appearing in its columns both in Great Britain and in the United States. Such works as "The Caxtons" and "My New Novel," (both by Bulwer), "My Peninsular Medal," "The Green Hand," and other serials, of which numerous rival editions are issued by the leading publishers in this country, have to be reprinted by those publishers from the pages of Blackwood, AFTER IT HAS BEEN ISSUED BY MESSRS. SCOTT & CO., so that subscribers to the reprint of that Magazine may always rely on having the EARLIEST reading of these fascinating tales.

ELEVENTH YEAR

OF THE

LOUISVILLE

WEEKLY COURIER.

Acknowledged by general consent to be the Largest, Best and Cheapest Newspaper in the West.

In issuing the Eleventh Prospectus of the Louisville Weekly Courier, we have great pleasure in announcing that Mr. Wm. D. Gallagher, Esq., has purchased an interest in the establishment, and he will hereafter be associated with us in its management. Mr. Gallagher is widely known as an able political and literary writer and a gentleman of cultivated taste, and being thoroughly Western in his education, habits and associations, and conversant with our Railroad and Manufacturing interests, we flatter ourselves that he will add largely to the value and interest of the Courier, and render it still more acceptable to its thousands of readers in every section of the great Mississippi Valley.

The Louisville Weekly Courier, Edited and Published by

W. D. GALLAGHER & W. N. HALDEMAN.

Is one of the largest, handsomest and best papers in the Union, and for the quantity and quality of matter it contains and the great care taken in its preparation, it is beyond all question

The Cheapest Paper in the West!

As a NEWSPAPER, its character is well established. Our readers of many years will bear witness that for enterprise, energy and reliability, it has borne the palm from all its contemporaries in Kentucky. It is almost invariably ahead in the publication of important news. It procures news of interest from all quarters, both by telegraph and private express, up to the very moment of publication, and entirely regardless of expense.

As a Commercial Paper, the Courier stands without a rival in Louisville. The gentleman who has had charge of the Commercial Department for the last six years, and whose entire time is devoted to it, has no superior, and his reports may always be regarded as accurate and reliable.

As a Literary Paper, we intend that it shall hereafter occupy much higher ground than heretofore. The Tales and Novellettes we publish will alone be worth ten times the price of the paper.

The Miscellaneous and Agricultural Departments will meet with all necessary attention. They will be both full and useful.

In Politics, the Courier will continue firmly Whig; but while advocating Whig measures and Whig principles, we do not intend to do so to the exclusion of our usual variety. Our readers may rest assured that they will not be surprised with politics through our columns.

Early in January we will commence the publication of the Original Stories:

The Martyr of the Heart, by MISS MATTIE GRIFFITH; The Little Cripple and his Foster Mother, by ALICE STANLEY.

A lady of Kentucky, whose literary productions have been greatly admired.

By adopting the Cash System, and strictly adhering to it, we are enabled to still further reduce the price of our paper, and will hereafter furnish it, large as it is, at the following Unprecedentedly low Rates.
